Lisa Furman's second release, "Rodeo Fever" (2014) features an eclectic blend of original and traditional American roots based music in the bluegrass/Americana style. Lisa's repertoire combines a deep love for traditional music with fresh, innovative arrangements featuring powerful vocals, resonant harmonies and driving rhythms. The opening track, "Get Right Church" and "Warfare" deliver the the driving inspirational groove of the bluegrass gospel genre. Other traditional songs, like "Who's Gonna Shoe" and "Oh! Susanna" boast rich and resonant string undertones beautifully layered with harmonic vocals. The album features 5 original songs, "Fat Hour", a sultry murder ballad, "Wash Over Me", an evocative song in the blues/gospel tradition and three instrumentals, "Pickett's Ridge", "Bella" and "Spuyten Duyvil".

The Rodeo Fever band features the powerful talents of Dick Neal on guitar, banjo and mandolin, Bob Csugie on bass, Jordan Jancz on bass and cello and Stephen K. Miller on mandolin. Frank Pergola joins the band with guitar on "Dig a Hole" and Howie Bujese adds his expressive harmonica on "Hop High" and "Wash Over Me". The recording also highlights Lisa's daughter, Tahlia Furman Cott on fiddle and backing vocals throughout the album. In live performance, this mother and daughter red-haired duo captivate audiences with their haunting and resonant harmonies. The album was recorded and mixed by Dick Neal at Circle Sound in Stratford, CT and mastered by Vic Steffens at Horizon Music Group.

Lisa Furman's debut release, "Lucky Girl" in 2006 received media praise and airplay on folk radio stations throughout the US and Russia. Her local and regional live performances continue to captivate audiences with her on-stage charm and engaging personality.
